

A Quintessential Evening: Five Short Plays

by Felix Racelis

WOOF: Chet is an eccentric retired widower whose closest companion is a dog hand puppet. Lack of work has forced his grown daughter, Lainie, to move back home and regroup. But today, with the help of his puppet, Chet musters the courage to confront his daughter about her dubious web based sex surrogate business .

UNCOMMON THREADS: Wary of a snobbish museum staffer's motives, an African-American retiree withdraws her quilt submission until she discovers they have more in common than just their ethnicity.

SHHH!: Neurotic library clerk Barry has a crush on co-worker Leslie, who, in turn, is enamored of a macho biker. Barry tries to entice Leslie into a date, with hilarious results.

POST-MATINEE TRISTESSE: A flamboyant academic pulls out all the stops attempting to hold on to a young waiter with a mind of his own.

HOME AGAIN: The sad story of the effects of alcoholism written in 3 remarkably short, telling scenes. Moving backward in time, we relive critical moments in the life of a young family that planned poorly. A very short play with a very long rippling message, and the audience fills in the blanks.
